Description

Our current virtualization hosts need to be upgraded from Debian 7 to Debian 8, to benefit from newer KVM tools and other updates.

This affects:

- dauntless
- excelsior
- falco
- website host (possibly not before Q4) -> no need, see #1465
- galaxy (possibly not before Q4) -> no need as we have new backup servers in place already

Dauntless was migrated.
Note:
update-grub and grub-install have to be executed before rebooting despite the note that this happens automatically during the upgrade.

Do we have a list of machines that still need updating?
For the server migrations, the new systems will run Debian 8 right from the start
How many existing VMs still need an upgrade?
What's the plan with Ubuntu 14.04 machines - keeping it that way until EOL, or reinstalling, as a direct upgrade from Ubuntu to Debian won't work?
