How many volunteers are handling this, or is it just you working on it? If so, we maybe should try to find volunteers to distribute the work :)

I think I'm the only one doing it (and that was the reason why I took care of it, because nobody was doing it :-(

Occasionally I also have a look at moderation queue, esp. When the switch was done. After lifting the moderation limit, much less frequently.

How about we approach the most active users on AskBot whether they want to help with moderation?

We discuss it during a team call, the problem is that moderators are not looking at the moderation queue, whatever the language. That's the reason I'm doing moderation here.

Is that a technical problem that we could invest into to make it more convenient, or some other issue?

There is nothing technical, I think that those who are moderators don't have the time to do it.

Maybe something to ask in e.g. the next marketing call? Not directly marketing, but I expect quite some audience there :-)

Consensus was to close this now
