Description
People comment on the extension but I don't receive a notification, for example https://extensions.libreoffice.org/en/extensions/show/galaxy-icon-theme

It's crucial to have a working communication channel => high priority.

That would be the most nerdy (say: uncomfortable) solution. What speaks against sending an email to the author and people booked on the thread?

- Target version set to Q4/2020

problem is that in case of a spam comment, we also could forward that spam, so email notification would only be something like "hey, there has been a new comment, please visit <page>" without providing the actual comment - would that be OK?

postpone, needs some more changes, especially a way to disable the notification in the user's profile.

fell over

added notification feature, but disabled currently/user needs to explicitly enable it in the profile.
And as of now still passing all mails to me for sanity checking...

- Status changed from Resolved to In Progress

Let's keep it open until it's functional.
